School Spotlight: Teacher Appreciation

It's fitting that this letter comes on the last day of teacher appreciation week. As the weather improves, comfort levels increase, and classes begin to move outdoors, it's important to take stock of the monumental challenges we've overcome as a community throughout the last 14 months. Yes, we're running on empty, but we've also had a chance to strengthen our practice, resilience, and hopefully enhance our connection with students. As I've heard repeatedly, this experience has clarified what we're here for, what we care about, and what we believe in as both educators and an organization.

It's also fitting that we were able to see these values shine through in our schools as we conducted the Superintendent tours this past week. We have students engaged in meaningful learning experiences, we have teachers that are proud and eager to share student work, and we have administrators who incessantly reflect pride in the progress and renewed sense of solidarity in their schools.

Thank you teachers for your work this week and every week!

- Dr. Hobbs, Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum, Assessment, & Instruction
